

Background

Collomix GmbH, a leading player in the international arena of manufacturing and innovation, recently faced a significant challenge: educating a diverse group of 25 participants during a comprehensive training and factory tour. The participants spoke different languages, creating a daunting language barrier that threatened to impede the seamless flow of technical knowledge crucial for their roles within the company. Global Voices stepped in and supplied interpreters to translate from German and English during the training and tour. Recognising the specificity of the content, our interpreters embarked on an intense preparation journey, and delved deep into the intricacies of Collomix's technical lexicon, ensuring a comprehensive grasp of the subject matter.

Challenge

Criticality of conveying highly technical information accurately and effectively to international participants.

Needed in-depth understanding of complex terminologies.
